Problems and crises of moral relations at this stage of human development are very actual, because even in the early stages of development our species has dreamt about a carefree life, full of deep meaning, love and based on principles of fairness and justice. Honesty, kindness, conscience, duty and dignity - is something that has always leads people to self-development. The behavior according these principles opens the way to moral perfection and fills the life of the individual by worthy and fair meaning. During the